ORGANIZATIONAL HISTORY

The Anesthetists Travel Club (the Club) had its beginnings in a meeting of colleagues who were invited to the Mayo Clinic by Dr. John S. Lundy. This first meeting took place on December 29, 1929. In an historical sketch, Dr. Lundy states that his purpose in organizing this meeting was to “improve.... distribution of information [about the specialty] in Canada and the United States”. (1: p. 2) According to an historical sketch by Dr. Frederich Van Bergen, Dr. Lundy was assisted in this by Drs. Charles F. McCuskey and Ralph M. Tovell. (2: p. 1.)

Dr. Lundy states that he purposely chose “men from important centers usually at a considerable distance from one another.” He envisioned the members of this group returning to their respective cities and convening other, local groups, to share the information gleaned at the Club meetings. But he states that “so far as I know [Dr. Philip Woodbridge] was the only one who ever did it.” (1: p. 3)

The group continued to meet under Dr. Lundy’s personal influence. He states “It was my idea that there should be no officers in the Club and I gave it as much direction as possible. I think I made the rules.” It was agreed that the membership would be limited to the 15 attendees of the first meeting. If any one could not attend a meeting, that meeting’s host was allowed to choose a delegate in that member’s stead. (1: pp. 3-4.) The proceedings of the first meeting were published in the Proceedings of the Mayo Clinic. To promote a sense of intimacy, clinics were kept small, and, after the first meeting, the proceedings of the meetings were deliberately not published. (2: p. 3.) [NB: Dr. Lundy made the preceding statement when describing the later Academy. (1: p. 5.)]

Each meeting was organized and hosted by a member of the Club. Meetings were held annually through 1941, but with the intervention of World War II meetings were suspended through 1951. By that time, “the active membership had increased to 30 and it was becoming .... awkward to continue the personal observations [i.e.: in clinics]. The increased membership also added to the financial burden of the host.” (2: p. 3.)

In his historical sketch, Dr. Lundy states that he then “decided” to reorganize the Club as the Academy of Anesthesiology. With his guidance, Dr. Roland J. Whitacre framed a proposed constitution and bylaws. These were introduced at the last meeting of the Club, December 15th and 16th, 1952, and unanimously adopted. (1: pp. 2-3.)

BIBLIOGRAPHY

   Produced in response to a request for information, to be used in compiling a complete history of the organization. This is an autobiographical statement, and includes material relating to other aspects of Dr. Lundy’s career.

   A reworking of Dr. Lundy’s MS, omitting the autobiographical details and smoothing out the narrative.

   Repeats the material in the Lundy and Van Bergen MSS, adds details of the programs of most meetings and a brief biographical sketch of each of the 31 members of the Anesthetists’ Travel Club.
